Banker's Family Targeted

The Problem: This newspaper headline depicts how low a criminal will go. Celebrities, high profile executives or even low profile moneyed individuals and their families are often targeted by criminals due to what they may have access to, their notoriety or financial status. Kidnapping, assaults, robberies, home invasions and even high tech crimes are often perpetrated on unsuspecting affluent families.

The Solution: Develop a proactive strategy that protects and preserves without impeding quality of life. A comprehensive security program is based on threat and risk level as well as the probability that a real threat exists. Coordinating a risk management strategy involves extensive research and customization. Risk mitigation revolves around the threats that a person or family is up against as well as their individual situations. Whether at home, traveling abroad or taking the kids to school, a system needs to be in place to reduce risk and increase the likely hood of avoiding and removing oneself from a dangerous situation.
